

Many made a competition of their rejoicing and heros of...

... those whose joy lifted them the highest.

In this way the ground and dust could never hold them.

